

The aspects of psychological safety that really resonated with me are leaders and the teams working in a very transparent way in a safe environment. People can share ideas and perspectives and know that they can do that in a respectful way and they're going to be heard. That's the way we grow – is if we can hear those different perspectives.

When someone does not assume positive intent, it's always about what is the hidden agenda. Why is this person saying this? It really derails the constructive conversation within the team.

We have leaders throughout this global organization. It's very exciting to hear their ideas and perspectives and just their stories that strengthens us not only as Amneal but just as people and understanding what I can learn from everyone.
