

AmeriCares and Amneal Pharmaceuticals Support Underserved Patients in Cambodia

AmeriCares has been working with Hope Worldwide in Cambodia since 1996. During that time, donated medications and medical supplies have benefitted the Sihanouk Hospital Center of Hope and their various outreach programs. This hospital, which provides high-quality medical care at no cost to patients, is proud to have conducted more than one million patient consultations. Recently, AmeriCares distribution network in Cambodia expanded to include one of the only trauma surgery centers in the country and a new hospital that provides care for a critically underserved area in the south of the country.

Trak Kouy, her husband Sam Keo and their 1-year-old son interact with a medical outreach team in their village outside of Phnom Penh.

Between these expansions and the increasing costs of medicines and supplies that are available locally, the generosity of donors like Amneal Pharmaceuticals has become even more important. Because of support from AmeriCares and its donors, these centers of excellence are able to treat patients that are among the poorest of the poor. Many travel significant distances to receive care, and have often spent all their available funds on failed attempts at traditional medicine. Without the donated products that health workers provide to patients free of cost, these men, women and children would likely not receive appropriate and effective treatment.

The delivery of products like CVS All-Day Pain Relief, generously donated by Amneal, help our local partners reach patients like Trak Kouy and her husband Sam. Along with their new baby, this family is part of a special outreach program run through the Sihanouk Hospital and receives regular care from dedicated outreach doctors that make use of donations provided through the hospital.

Dedicated donors like Amneal enable medical professionals in isolated and disadvantaged communities throughout Cambodia to address critical health needs for those who often have no other treatment options.

AmeriCares thanks Amneal Pharmaceuticals for its generous donation and support of the people of Cambodia. Together we are improving global health and helping people live longer, happier lives.
